Comments: About the transportation of this material. I know it has been mentioned about the safety of the transporters and general public but what about the people who work on and build truck bodies as in the trailers and the rail cars as in the repair of. I would think that would open the doors for an endless workmans comp. suits. You know peepole get sick and also die from radiation poisoning, These workers could very easily come in contact with this. Do we really want to take that chance? What is the price a a human life even if it is just one!
