I personally don't want nuclear waste stored in Nevada. Since this is the only site being considered I believe it doesn't matter what we want. Secondly I think Nevada has had a lot of experience with nuclear waste. I also believe you don't want just anybody handling nuclear waste that knows nothing about it. That could turn out worse than having it in our own back yard. I would only agree with it if they use the canisters that they say they are going to use and not buy cheaper ones from somebody else that have not been tested. I just believe if Nevada is going to handle everybody's nuclear waste the state should be compensated for it.
